Abstract

Arabic is the language of the holy Qura'n which was sent for the guidance of the entire humanity. Thus, Arabic has become the language of Islam. Since arrival of Islam in the Subcontinent, the Muslims in this region played a significant role in maintaining the language of the Qura'n. They learned this language to understand the holy Qura'n, Hadith and the religious sciences. As a result, religious consciousness spread far and wide in the Subcontinent. The article explains the importance of Arabic language and its role in creating religious awareness and understanding of the holy Qura'n and the Sunnah in Pakistan. The article concludes with the provision of a summary of the research and its findings besides proposing some suggestions in this regard.
